

Araştırma Geliştirme

In İntermak AŞ. This department organized Research and Development projects of the company.

Be responsible for administering the projects, the demands of the market and to assess research demands that came from other sections, will assess and evaluate the results of the of quality control make periodic meetings, inform concerned persons by critical situations encountered into quality control results and carry out such activities to intervene into production and other departments is among its main responsibilities

Carries out and executes research about a new product to be developed, and executes creation of and up to test works activities by its trained staff.

With the establishment of testing and experimentation laboratory R & D make production experiment with customer experts by performed machine and equipment and developing the components on the appropriate machine-equipment to the product